

WILLIAM B. MILLARD, Ph.D.
wbm1@columbia.edu billmillard.org

Freelance writer, editor, and editorial consultant (1990-present; full-time, 2003-present)

Articles have appeared in Icon, Oculus, eOculus, Annals of Emergency Medicine, The Architect's Newspaper, Building Design's BD magazine, RIBA Journal, Architect, LEAF Review, Content, Postmodern Culture, Works and Days, Review of Contemporary Fiction, Sites, Critical Texts, AskANewYorker.com, East-Village.com, and elsewhere, including three peer-reviewed anthologies (publications list available on request or at billmillard.org/WBM-publist.pdf). Other recent activities include:

Editorial consultant to novelist William H. Edgerton (Jan. 2006-present); William Gati, AIA, past president, American Institute of Architects, Queens (May 2006-Dec. 2006); Becker and Becker, Architects, Fairfield, CT (May 2005-present); East Village Community Media, New York, NY (Jan. 2005-present); and Prof. Nicholas Turro, Columbia University Dept. of Chemistry (July 2004-present).

Contributor and editor-at-large, Office for Metropolitan Architecture (OMA), Rotterdam, Netherlands (Aug.-Oct. 2003), on Content (Rem Koolhaas et al., eds.; Köln, Taschen, 2004); also served on editorial team for OMA's "Image of Europe" exhibition, Brussels, 2004.

Grant researcher/editor, Columbia Center for New Media Teaching and Learning (CCNMTL), New York, Jan.-May 2002), leading to full-time position.

Full-time and long-term positions:

- 2002-2003 Special Projects Manager/Editor, CCNMTL. Wrote and edited grant proposals related to educational technology, working with faculty and Information Services staff; researched federal and foundation funding opportunities; initiated projects and assembled interdisciplinary faculty groups; consulted on new projects and outreach. Wrote or contributed to successful proposals for competitive federal programs in educational technology, nanotechnology, environmental science, and other fields.
- 2000-2001 Senior Editor, Strategic Communications Group, Office of Strategic Initiatives, Office of the Executive Vice Provost, Columbia University. Wrote policy papers, project profiles, and associated reports on interdisciplinary research supported by OSI and OEVP; overhauled Columbia's research website, supervising web designers and assistants; co-chaired OEVP's web committee with director of Office of Projects and Grants; designed and coded OSweb and original Nanoweb.
- 1995-2000 Editor, 21stC: The World of Research at Columbia University. Edited interdisciplinary research magazine covering sciences, social sciences, and humanities. Conceived articles, planned issues, edited/ghostwrote extensively, and maintained quality control; recruited and guided authors (professional journalists, Columbia faculty, and national academic leaders); coordinated art director, photographers, and programmers; took sole responsibility for online edition. Conceived signature departments Metanews (media analysis) and Conversations (self-moderated panel discussions). Promoted from Managing Editor, 1995.
- 1990-1995 Senior Editor, Patient Care, Medical Economics Publishing, Montvale, NJ. Wrote feature articles for primary care physicians, based on interviews with specialists and study of the medical literature. Issue Editor, 1994 Patient Care Emergency Handbook. Promoted from Senior Associate Editor.
- 1989-1990 Development Editor, Gower Medical Publishing, New York. Edited multi-author textbooks in cardiology, gastroenterology, and radiology; oversaw production; managed assistants.
- 1987-1994 Music critic, Forbes Newspapers, N.J. Column won New Jersey Press Association award, 1993.
- 1980-1982 Copy editor, New England Journal of Medicine.

Education:

Rutgers University: Ph.D., English and American literature, 2000. Dissertation: "Emerson to Twain to Pynchon: American Nonfoundationalism's Triple Play." Advisor: James Guetti. Taught undergraduate courses in literature and composition/rhetoric, 1984-1989.

Amherst College: B.A., summa cum laude, English, 1980. Honors include Phi Beta Kappa.